Committee to Speed Work for Florida Relief

Mayor Block Answers Appeal by Appointment of Local Committee Who Will Work in Conjunction With Ulster County Chapter of the Red Cross.

Kingston's residents are offered the opportunity of coming to the aid of devastated Florida with gifts of money, food and clothing. Contributions of money should be forwarded direct to local Red Cross headquarters at No. 293 Wall street, while the food and clothing may be left at the state armory on Broadway, or will be called for if the armory is notified on the telephone. The need is urgent and the response to the appeal should be immediate.

Appeal For Aid.

Mayor Morris Block has received the following telegrom from General William Haskell of New York city: "Pursuant to Governor Smith's proclamation of today I am organizing New York State Florida Relief Committee. You have been appointed a member and I request that you set up a local organization for immediate collection of funds, food, clothing for stricken people. Food and clothing should be shipped rapidly to 244 Artillery Armory, 125 West 14th street, New York city. Send funds as received to Florida Relief Committee, care County Trust Company, 15th street and 8th avenue, New York city. Supplies should be boxed or sacked for reshipment to Florida. Local Committee Appointed.

Mayor Block after consulting Tuesday evening with D. N. Mathews head of the local Red Cross association, appointed the following committee to carry on the work of relief: Dr. George F. Chandler, George Burgevin, John D. Schoonmaker, Mrs. J. W. Searing, Edward Coykendall, B. N. Mathews, Frank Forman, the Rev. F. B. Seeley, N. B. Gross, William B. Byrne, Mrs. C. W. Hasbrouck, Judge Harry E. Schirick, E. E. Fessenden, the Rev. Ignatius Bialdyga, James J. Murphy, Judge James A. Betts, Captain Ralph Miller, Everett Fowler, Mrs. Thomas Hayes, Ray Hiltebrant, Ward B. Everett and Sam Jacobson.

Armory to be Used.

Through the courtesy of Major O. R. Hiltebrant the use of the state armory on Broadway has been offered and it will be used as a depot for receiving food and clothing for Florida.

All wishing to donate food or clothing should leave it at the armory, or, if unable to do so, call up the armory, giving the name and address, and the articles will be sent for.

John D. Schoonmaker has arranged to have automobiles call at homes for food and clothing where it is found impossible to deliver them personally at the armory.

Red Cross Makes Appeal.

The Home Service office of the Ulster County Chapter of the American Red Cross at 293 Wall street has received orders from national headquarters at Washington to receive at that address all contributions of money from individuals and organizations in this county for the relief of devastated Florida. Mrs. Cornelia Hasbrouck, the secretary, has already given receipts for cash and checks, and will keep the office open all day from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. to take contributions.

Ulster county must live up to her reputation for generosity and response, as always to the appeal of so great a calamity with a handsome amount. Nearly fourteen hundred dollars went to the Tornado Relief Fund in the West in 1925, and when the Japanese earthquake brought terror to the world, Ulster county went over the top with something over eleven thousand dollars.

This county owes Florida a special debt. Hundreds of our citizens have gone there for many years to play and to work, for health, and to invest money. That state is not only part of our own country, it is almost an annex to Ulster county. A good many of our residents have friends or relatives in the stricken districts, and to them the appeal will come with a strong pull, and to all, rich and poor, the case applies. Come with, or send to the Red Cross office as soon as you possibly can, whatever you can afford.

No amount can be too large, and none is too small to get a receipt for. Ten cents, ten dollars or ten hundred dollars, it will warm your heart to have been among the first givers! The need is great—grows greater with every mail from the south, the suffering already beyond description. Thousands are homeless, little children are orphaned or separated from parents, and the list of dead and mutilated grow daily longer. From every pocket in the county of Ulster should come something, and later add to the amount if you can."

Received for Florida Relief.

The Red Cross office at 293 Wall street has received to date, the following contributions to the Disaster Relief Fund:

Ballard & Scudder	$2...

Bringing Order Out of Chaos in Stricken Florida

Miami Hardest Hit of All, Has Great Task In Restoring Order—Death List Will Exceed 400—No Loss of Life In Mobile and Pensacola.

(By The Associated Press.)

The Florida hurricane-swept communities, facing a death list of upwards of 400 persons, 4,000 or more injured and property damage which will amount to $50,000,000 or more, centered their efforts today on bringing a degree of order which would permit an accurate accounting of the havoc wrought by the disaster.

The Miami area, hardest hit of all, was going about the work of rehabilitation, caring for the injured and seeking out the dead in systematic manner. The American Red Cross and other relief agencies were on hand full force, with troops on guard and martial law declared in many places.

The injured in Hollywood, Miami suburb, have been ordered removed to points north of the city and persons unable to aid in the relief and rehabilitation work have been instructed by military authorities to evacuate the city, according to information brought to West Palm Beach last night by Dr. William R. Redden, national director of the American Red Cross Medical Service.

Dr. Redden estimated the seriously injured at 1,400. He found 1,350 patients in Miami hospitals and estimated that the total injured there was 3,500, of whom 1,000 suffered serious hurts.

About 500 of these had fractured limbs and skulls. He also said the official list of deaths in Miami had been placed at 135.

Pensacola and Mobile, struck by the hurricane just before it passed inland and dissipated, made known to the world that there was no loss of life in either city.

Pensacola Still Cut Off.

Mobile again was connected with the outside world by a telegraph wire but Pensacola still was practically cut off early today. Over one shaky wire and through a wireless despatch to The Associated Press it was learned that Pensacola came through a 120 mile blow but with considerable property damage. Several ships went ashore.

At Moore Haven, an agricultural city on the western bank of Lake Okeechobee, martial law went into effect early today and an effort was being made to check up the death list, already known to be around 100. Approximately 70 bodies had been recovered up to last night and it was said that 40 others had been located and would be recovered today. Estimates still put the deaths there at 150 or more.

In several places surveys have brought down the original death lists, some persons previously reported dead having been found alive.

At Fort Lauderdale the death list came down to eleven last night but at Hollywood it is expected that the total will be around 70. Miami Beach, it was revealed, had a list of 22 known dead.

The property loss at Coral Gables was conservatively estimated at $1,500,000.

Okeelant, and Everglades village, was wrecked, only the post office and one store building remaining.

The first hospital train came out of the storm district last night carrying 46 patients and 113 refugees to West Palm Beach and Fort Pierce.

The Clyde liner Cherokee and the Merchants and Miners liner Berkshire have arrived at Miami as has the freighter Louisiana. Some apprehension for their safety has been felt.

Communicate With Miami.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 22 (AP).—Leased wire communication with Miami was restored today when the Miami News office was cut on The Associated Press Florida circuit.

This was the first direct communication with Miami since last Saturday.

No Lives Lost at Bahamas.

Nassau, Bahamas, Sept. 22 (AP).—(Delayed)—The hurricane which swept the Bahamas Friday night was of equal severity but less duration than the July storm. Its damage was done here, but the Andros and Bimini Islands suffered severely, with hundreds of small houses leveled. The most serious report came from Long (Turnes) Island where there are said to have been some fatalities.

No loss of life has been reported here but it is feared that the vessels have gone down at sea with all on board.

A motion-picture party stranded on Andros Island when its ship was wrecked on a coral reef, reached Nassau today. The party found shelter and the earth for fourteen hours a day. All were safe.

New Store for Mohican Comp'y

Frank Forman to Erect Modern Building on John Street Opposite Parking Ground—Company Signs 28-Year Lease—Excavation Work Started.

Papers were signed at the office of Judge John G. Van Etten Tuesday afternoon whereby Frank Forman of this city will construct a building on John street for lease to the Mohican Company. The papers were signed by E. H. Closs, treasurer of the Mohican Company, and William T. Dewart, president of the company, with Mr. Closs acting as representative of the company in the negotiations.

For some time negotiations have been pending between the Mohican Company and Mr. Forman for the construction of a two-story and basement building on John street on the site of the former Forsyth & Davis wholesale paper and stationery warehouse, opposite the parking grounds. These negotiations were terminated Tuesday afternoon with the signing of a twenty-eight-year lease between the parties.

The contract for the building was later awarded to Clarence Van Aken and work on excavating was started this morning. Plans for the building have been prepared by Architect G. W. Betz of this city.

Plans call for a modern building, specially constructed and fitted out for the grocery, meat, vegetable and bakery business. The modern bakery will be located on the second floor while the main floor will be fitted out with new modern appliances for the retail business. In addition to the meat, grocery, bakery and dairy departments now operated in the present Mohican store on Wall street, a vegetable department will be added to the new store.

The building will be rushed to completion so that Manager Ripton may move to his new quarters as soon as possible. The new store will have about twice the space of the present building and will be ample to take care of the increased business of the Mohican Company.

Judge John G. Van Etten of Van Etten and Cook represented Mr. Forman in the transaction.

KILLER DISAPPOINTED OVER JAIL SENTENCE.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 22 (AP).—Convicted of murder, Tom Johnson confessed slayer of 14 men and participant in 1,700 crimes, was disappointed today because he faces life imprisonment instead of hanging.

Johnson was found guilty by a jury last night of slaying Leonard Erdall, attorney, and former University of Minnesota football player, during a holdup.

"I want to be hanged. I don't care what I've done," Johnson declared on the stand during the trial, and today he still clung to the same desire.

"I want to be taken to Iowa and be hung," he said.

"The people I've killed come dancing into my cell at night. I can't get away from 'em."

DILLMAN YACHT IS SUNK IN THE HUDSON.

New York, Sept. 22 (AP).—The seagoing yacht Delphine, owned by Mrs. Hugh Dillman, formerly Mrs. Horace E. Dodge of Detroit, today is a burned hulk sunk in the Hudson river at the 96th street pier. The craft caught fire while at anchor late last night and two fire boats brought it near enough the pier for three fire engines to pour streams into the smouldering bunkers. That with the water pumped by the fire boats soon sent the yacht to the bottom.

All of the crew of 54 were taken ashore. Mr. and Mrs. Dillman were not on board.

Ghosts Hovered Over Silver Mine

Wierd Tradition of Spanish Silver Mine on Black Mountain Recalled as Highlands of the Hudson Are Opened to Motor Travel and Trampers.

One of the most picturesque legends of the Highlands of the Hudson, a tale that was told by old residents now almost all passed on, and which from its circumstantial narration suggests some considerable foundation of fact, is that of the mysterious "Spanish Silver Mine." This mine, said to have yielded almost pure silver, was supposed to have been located on Black Mountain, a craggy summit 1,200 feet above the Hudson river, and about four miles southwest of Bear Mountain, headquarters of the Harrison State Park.

Silver and even gold have been sought in the Highlands, for there was Baron Hasenclever, who came over from Westphalia back about 1730, with a grant to seek precious metals, and had to satisfy himself with iron, which he took out of a shaft that still bears his name, near Lake Tiorati, in the centre of the Harriman Park. But he was a real enough person and one of his sons was an engineer officer under Washington, who demolished an iron furnace at Ringwood, N. J., because the owners were Tories. As for these Spaniards of the Black Mountain mine, we have only a tale, passed down from the father of Harvey Brooks, an old resident of Queensboro, a one-time hamlet back of Bear Mountain, and very likely deriving from Harvey's grandfather or great grandfather, and told by him, not long before he died, to Major W. A. Welch, general manager of the park, who draws delightful chills up and down the backs of boy and girl campers in the park, when he tells the grisly legend to campfire audiences. The story is known to and partly believed, anyway, by others of the hills folks, and it has given such a sinister repute to Black Mountain that the coons on it are quite safe except from a younger, scoffing generation.

Harvey Brooks's Tale.

Harvey Brooks long occupied the old Queensboro Manor House, where the Long Mountain road turns off the Seven Lakes Drive, the main motor highway in the Harriman Park, and his father lived there before him, as inheritors of part of the ancient Ferris patent, granted by the British Crown, about 1660. Now it is known as Camp Quannacut and is occupied by a group of girls. Harvey is gone to his reward, but here is the tale as he told it to Major Welch:

Early in the Eighteenth Century the Highlands of the Hudson were a wild and shaggy wilderness, densely covered with forests of white pine and hemlock, the haunt of bears and wolves. Back of the river they were almost unknown, except to Indians and a few white hunters and trappers. The Dutch settlers, with an eye to good farm lands, and with no love for these rough hills, after settling Rockland county's gently rolling slopes, had passed above the Highlands to the more easily cultivable lands in Dutchess and Orange counties, about Newburgh and Beacon.

Few Cabins Along River.

There were a few cabins along the river at points that are now well known landings, and the beginnings of a hamlet, with a rude inn, at the western side of the southern gate of the Highlands, where Dunderberg Mountain slopes steeply to the Hudson, opposite Peekskill. This was known as Caldwell's from a family which settled early in these parts and whose name is further perpetuated on the Harriman Park map, by an iron mine which one of its members opened later near Lake Tiorati. Caldwell's is now known as Jones Point, a station on the West Shore Railroad, off which a hundred of the Shipping Board's idle steamers lie anchored.

Dutch Courage Was Needed.

The reason for the establishment of Caldwell's, and of the tavern, where strong schnapps were procurable, lay in the fear which the crews of the river sloops had for the tides and sudden storms of the Devil's Horse Race, the narrow and deep part of the Hudson Gorge, between Dunderberg and Storm King, where Dwerg, Lord of the Dunderberg, held sway and enacted severe reprisals unless the captains lowered their topmasts and dipped their flags in the passage. A good deal of Dutch courage was required for the passage, and Caldwell's was the last oasis until Newburgh was reached, so they put in to this landing for the requisite rites and preparations.

A Strange Ship Appears.

Around about 1720 or thereabouts, early in the summer, a strange ship came up the Hudson, of a build quite different from such English and Dutch ships as were commonly seen, and anchored off Caldwell's. From it landed a party of dark, bearded, fierce looking men, well armed, but who also carried picks and shovels and sacks. They told no one their business, asked no questions, but seemed to know what they were about. They started west along an old Indian trail that led through the defile between Bear Mountain and West Mountain. No one saw them during the summer, but in the fall back they came, each staggering under a heavy load in his sack. But before boarding their ship, they stopped for Caldwell's cheer, and, in his cups, one of them showed the contents of his sack, which, according to report, was rich silver ore. They made sail and went on down the river.

During the winter, the hunters and trappers searched the woods of the inner hills and, on the north slope of Black Mountain, found a rude log cabin. As Harvey Brooks got it from his father, it was a two-room, saddleback affair, and the porch in the middle was oriented so as to point toward the summit of the mountain, as if there was something which the builders wanted to keep under observation. The hunters suspected a mine, but search revealed not the slightest trace of any opening.

The Spaniards Reappear.

A year or two afterward, the Spaniards came back again in the same ship, and again made their way back to Black Mountain. Their fierce appearance seems to have discouraged any interference with them during their summer's operations, and they worked unmolested and again came out in the fall, with filled sacks and sailed away. Next year they came back again, but the curiosity of the settlers was now so intense, that the miners were evidently disturbed into an earlier departure, but still with filled oresacks.

A fourth time they sailed up the river, in the summer or two following, and this time, six marched through the forest to Beechy Bottom, and their cabin on Black Mountain. There was a quarrel at the tavern with the people of the hamlet who were getting insistent as to their business but they broke away after some fighting, and were not followed.

Explorers Make Ghastly Find.

But that fall, only two of the six came out and returned to their ship, on which a few of the party had stayed, and all sailed away, never to return. Soon after, a search party explored Black Mountain. They found the cabin, and inside it were the bodies of two of the men, long dead. In the ribs of one was a Spanish dagger. The other had a broken skull. There was no sign of the other two. It was then getting dark, but the cupidity of the searchers for that silver mine was so great that they climbed higher on the mountain, looking for the opening of the shaft.

Adventures With Ghosts.

Late the next day a haggard and terror stricken party staggered into Caldwell's, with a fearful story of their adventures on Black Mountain. They declared that as they neared the summit, they were met by the ghosts of the other two men, shrouded in a light like phosphorescence. When they tried to flee down the mountain they could not move; their limbs refused to carry them. They huddled under a great pine, and shivered in fright till dawn, with the luminous ghosts whirling madly about them. At the first light, these spirits disappeared, and at length the searchers recovered command of their legs and hurried as best they could back to the Indian trail and returned to the shore of the Hudson and Caldwell's bar. And no one to this day has found the mine.

Dogs Scare at Noises.

The cabin is said to have remained for years until it rotted, and its site was occupied during part of the last century by a family named Knapp, whose farm has since been abandoned for forty years and is now growing up again into forest. As the country became more settled and the hamlet of Queensboro, at the foot of the north slope of Black Mountain was established, the young hunters, scoffing at the tales of their elders, tried coon hunting in the supposed vicinity of the mysterious mine. But they, too, brought back stories of ghosts and lights and strange noises and even the dogs were scared, so that no one tried it a second time.

Two Old Openings Remain.

There are now two old openings on the summit of Black Mountain, evidently on a vein of iron ore. The Ramapo-Dunderberg Trail, the principal hikers' path across the Park, passes close to them. But no one has found any silver, and no one in many years has spent a night out on the mountain, to discover if the ghosts of the old Spaniards still walk there.

MAKES RADIATORS HOT ALL OVER

The Dunham Radiator Trap is one of the fundamentals of The Dunham Home Heating System. It is known the world over to heating engineers as the device that revolutionized vacuum steam heating. The same reasons which made the engineers of the Woolworth Building, the imposing Field Museum of Chicago, and of nationally famous hotels, municipal buildings, industrial plants and homes, from Maine to California, prefer Dunham Heating Service, should logical reasons which will appeal to you.

You Can't Choose Cigars with a ruler

YOU can't use a pair of scales, either. Cigars that weigh more are not necessarily better smokers.

We have no desire to produce the largest cigar on the market. If we wished to, we could do it—by substituting cheaper tobaccos for the fine mellowed Havana that we now use in Peter Schuyler Perfectos.

But we prefer to keep faith with the thousands of discriminating smokers who depend on us. Some of these men lit their first Peter Schuyler Perfecto forty years ago. We should be Benedict Arnolds indeed to betray such an army of old customers—for the sake of a few bargain-hunters who buy cigars with the aid of a ruler.

$1.50 Debt, Seven Years Old, Is Paid

Corning, N. Y., Sept. 22 (AP).—Returning from a visit with neighbors Saturday, Mrs. A. M. Breed, widow of the late Dr. Breed, who died here seven years ago, found in her mail-box an envelope containing $1.50 and the following note: "Enclosed please find $1.50 which I owed Dr. Breed." No name was signed and Mrs. Breed does not know the debtor. Dictates of conscience evidently resulted in the payment of this small debt after a lapse of seven years, or it may have been the fact that it was merely overlooked and recalled by some recent incident.

Sidelights on the Florida Storm

(By The Associated Press).

The famous James Whitcomb Riley oak tree set out by the Hoosier poet several years ago at the intersection of Collins avenue and Lincoln road, two main thoroughfares of Miami Beach, was uprooted by the storm.

As doctors and nurses gave medical attention to the injured, and relief workers meted out scanty supplies to the homeless at Hollywood yesterday, Caesar La Monica's band paraded the streets playing lively airs.

A woman relief worker at Sebring appealed to newspaper men last night for belts. "We have a quantity of trousers for men," she said, "but no belts to hold them up. Please issue an appeal for belts at once."

An Associated Press correspondent driving into Fort Lauderdale yesterday was hailed by a farmer, who had an iron spike driven through his left cheek. He was taken to Fort Lauderdale where a doctor sewed up the wound.

C. G. Rhodes, a Fort Lauderdale millionaire, withdrew $20,000 from a bank yesterday and passed bills of large denomination to destitute persons on the streets.

Seeing his dog floating down the stream in a deluge of water, a Sebring man plunged into the flood in an attempted rescue. Man and dog died together

A Miami Beach druggist, clad only in a bathing suit, for three days has dispensed drugs and soft drinks from the soda fountain of his store, unroofed and demonished by the hurricane.

Grand Knight Byrne Watched

At the regular meeting of Kingston Council, No. 275 Knights of Columbus, Monday evening, William B. Byrne the outgoing grand knight of the local order, was presented with a handsome solid gold watch, chain and fob. Grand Knight Byrne has served Kingston Council for the past two years and his great interest in the affairs of the council was described by Advocate J. Edward Conway in his presentation speech.

Expressing his gratefulness for the hearty cooperation on the part of the membership during his reign and asking that the same support be shown his successor, Florian P. Wingert, Grand Knight Byrne closed his successful terms amid lusty applause.

Tuesday evening a large delegation of the members of Kingston Council journeyed to Highland Falls where they attended a get-together meeting. District Deputy Patrick T. Murphy and Francis T. Murray were the principal speakers of the evening.

No Whiskey for Storm Victims

Washington, Sept. 22 (AP).—Prohibition officials indicated today that the Florida relief workers would have to do without the whiskey they asked for yesterday in an appeal to the country.

James Jones, the prohibition commissioner, pointed out that interstate shipment of non-medicinal liquor was strictly forbidden by Federal law, and gave it as his opinion that the Florida laws prohibited distribution of even medicinal liquor.

Garden City, N. Y., Sept. 22 (AP).—Walter Hagen finished the first half of his second round match against Dick Grout of Oklahoma City in the Professional Golf Association championship today with a lead of three holes.

JUDGE JOHN G. VAN ETTEN.

Judge John G. Van Etten of this city was slated for the Democratic nomination for justice of the Supreme court at Albany this afternoon. The convention was scheduled to begin at 2 o'clock with Neile F. Judge Van Etten is a son of the late John E. Van Etten of Kingston and is 63 years old, having been born in Kingston August 7, 1863. He was educated at Kingston Academy and Princeton College and admitted to the bar in 1886.

In 1890 and 1891 he served as city engineer of Kingston. Subsequently he was the Democratic candidate for district attorney of Ulster county. In 1898 he was elected county judge and was defeated for re-election in 1904. He attended the National Convention at Chicago in 1896 which nominated William J. Bryan for president and during that campaign led the Bryan wing of the party in Ulster county. Other activities of a public nature have included membership of the first Zoning Board of Appeals of Kingston and more recently membership in the board of education of Kingston. During the World War he served as Food Administrator and also Fuel Administrator of Ulster county.

He served as a member of the old Fourteenth Separate Company, of which he was captain, and socially is a member of Kingston Lodge, No. 10, F. & A. M., of which he is a past master. He is a member of the law firm of Van Etten & Cook.

KINGSTON, N. Y., SEPT. 22, 1926.

The news comes of a Nebraska judge who sentences violators of the Volstead act twenty days in jail on bread and water—presumably on the principle that the too thirsty deserve to go hungry.

The sudden stop of an American train having spilled his coffee in the diner, St John Irvine, the Irish playwright, concludes that "there is not one engine driver in America who is fit to serve as an oiler or greaser to a British engine driver"—thus adding to the typical Irishman's reputation for being rather hasty.

The accounts of the latest diamond rush in South Africa remind a none too youthful journalist of "the rush when the government lands in Oklahoma were opened to settlement." There is this difference, however: the Oklahoman rushers knew that if they footed it fast enough they would get a land allotment, while the South African rushers knew they might sweat all in vain, there being only the gambler's chance of getting their fingers on "pay dirt."

We read of a prohibition agent who went to sea to capture a liquor smuggler, but unfortunately fell overboard and was rescued by the man he had come to arrest. At first he was a bit troubled in mind, but, deciding that his duty to the government was paramount, he promptly handcuffed the man to whom he owed his life—for he did not know how to swim. One wonders if it occurred to him that he might resign his commission. What his life saver thought about it all is not reported, but doubtless it would fill a column or two, some of it unprintable.

HE IS A DEMOCRAT.

Why Governor Smith should expect complimentary votes from Republicans is more than the ordinary person can possibly imagine. The truth is the Governor is a Tammany Democrat, always has been, always will be and is proud of it, and his one ambition is to build up the Democratic party up-state and down-state. He does no favor for the Republican organization, even if he may now and then do a favor for some individual. He makes sure what he does is distinctly personal.

It is well known that the Governor's chances of winning this fall have been lessening for a long time because Republicans up-state and down-state too, realize Governor Smith is a Democrat morning, noon and night. While he has hitherto successfully appealed to the emotions of many, he cannot repeat this practice interminably. There is no doubt that the Governor feels he has gone about as far as he can "selling" the "good fellow" stuff and that he must now have more than that to win support outside the ranks of the Democratic party.

Just to show how friendly Governor Smith is to Republicans, it is only necessary to mention what he has done on every occasion when there has been a vacancy caused by the retirement of a Republican county official in any Republican district where the people by their votes proved they wanted a Republican in office. In each instance he has appointed a Democratic successor. This tells the story plainly enough as to what Republicans can anticipate from Governor Smith.

MURDERERS LET OUT.

When Leopold and Loeb, the cynical young murderers of an innocent boy, were sentenced to life imprisonment two years ago, it was supposed that society would be protected from them as long as they lived. But already the new superintendent of paroles for Illinois has announced that under the regulations they will be eligible for release on parole by December, 1935—a little more than eleven years after the beginning of their "life imprisonment" for murder and "99 years" imprisonment for kidnapping. District Attorney Crowe of Chicago is quoted as saying that he will fight any move to release Leopold and Loeb, but it would appear that he will first have to make a successful fight against the present parole regulations.

Under these regulations, according to the recent report of the Missouri crime survey, sentences of 99 years means in practice 11.19 years, a life sentence means only 10.89 years, and a sentence of death only about 11 years in prison. This seems incredible, and yet we read that a law went into effect in New York last July making only an habitual criminal, or a person three times convicted of felony, liable to actual life imprisonment without benefit of parole. This parole system, which defeats the intent of the longest sentence for the most atrocious crime, must be done away with or greatly modified before there can be hope of making punishment a real deterrent. Think of such criminal degenerates as Leopold and Loeb walking out of prison in their early thirties, in the very prime of their young manhood!

IODINE IN SALMON.

A couple of years ago I spoke of a Japanese woman on the Pacific coast who was suffering from goitre. As goitre is practically unknown amongst the Japanese the physician making the examination was mystified, until the woman told him that since she had become wealthy she had ceased eating fish, that she had a white servant, and ate only the foods of white people.

In a certain valley in British Columbia every white child born in the valley had goitre, and many male adults developed it in a few months after arriving there.

Further, the live stock suffered in a similar manner. No litter of pigs lived more than one day after birth. 90 per cent of the calves, and 85 per cent of the colts, likewise died from this trouble.

Meanwhile in the same valley was a tribe of Indians none of whom, and none of whose ancestors, ever had goitre. Further their pigs rarely or ever were afflicted with goitre.

Now why was this?

Simply because the Indians ate salmon or sea fish, and the white folks did not. Further the pigs of the Indians ate the dead salmon washed ashore on the gravel banks of the stream.

Around our great lakes goitre is very common because of the lack of sea food.

As you know the bulk of iodine is secured from seaweeds, which have the highest iodine content of any foodstuff.

Other sea foods such as lobsters and oysters are likewise rich in iodine, but you have to be rich yourself to indulge in them.

Some of the United States government officials have been experimenting upon a large number of food samples as to their iodine content.

Butter, eggs, wheat, potatoes, milk and beef all contain considerable iodine, but red salmon contains from four times to four hundred times the amount of iodine found in the above foods.

The leafy vegetables, fruits, and eggs have portions of them rich in iodine, but not used as food, whereas salmon that is cooked can practically all be eaten.

A further practical point these men have demonstrated, is that the ordinary canned salmon is as rich in iodine as the fresh salmon itself.

Most of us do not eat fish. The fish habit once or twice a week would be wise for all of us.

And in regions far from the sea, or where goitre is prevalent, it would be good practice on our part to try and eat some sea food somewhat regularly. Butter is about the only food that nearly approaches it in iodine content.

Facts and Figures

"How much do you weigh now?" asked the beauty expert, on whom she had called.

"One hundred and seventy pounds," answered the client.

"When you are ready to tell me your real weight," she said, "I will be ready to talk business."

The customer blushed and told the truth. Then she asked how the beauty expert knew she was heavier than the weight she first gave.

"Madam," answered the woman, "surely you know that figures never lie."

Storehouses of Gold

Gold is often found in veins or in a placer or gravel deposit. Placers are the result of shattered and eroded veins in the mountains. Streams carried the boulders, cobbles and fine gravel, with the released gold, down to the valleys, where it settled and partly sorted. Some of the gravel and gold was deposited along and in the beds of streams. This is either hydraulicked or dredged. Gold in veins may be found in almost any rock, such as slate, schist, diorite or greenstone, granite and quartzite.

Today's Story in New York History

By Frederic A. Godcharles.

Captain Nathan Hale Condemned and Executed as a Spy, September 22, 1776.

A brave young captain in the "Connecticut Rangers," a corps known as "Congress's Own," commanded by Colonel Thomas Knowlton, had just enacted a most patriotic part in the battle of Long Island, when he was chosen by General Washington for the perilous service of a spy. Captain Nathan Hale paid the supreme penalty for his patriotism, but his memory still lives as one of the martyrs of the Revolution.

Nathan Hale was born in Coventry, Connecticut, June 6, 1755. He was a delicate child but his fondness for athletic sports developed his physique and he was an earnest student, and was prepared for college at the age of sixteen. He graduated from Yale in 1773, where he was popular with faculty and students alike, while his personal beauty and grace and manner were most charming and won him a ready welcome to the most aristocratic circles of New Haven.

The news of Lexington reached New London where he was teaching, and at a town meeting, Hale said, "Let us march immediately, and never lay down our arms until we have obtained our independence." He at once enrolled himself as a volunteer, and was made lieutenant in Colonel Charles Webb's regiment, took part in the siege of Boston, and in January, 1776, was breveted captain for his gallantry.

After the British evacuated Boston, Captain Hale went to New York early in September, 1776, where he, with an associate, planned and effected the capture of a British sloop laden with provisions, taking her at midnight from under the guns of the man-of-war "Asia," and distributed her prize goods to the American soldiers.

After the retreat of the Continental Army from Long Island, when it was all-important to understand the plans of the enemy, General Washington applied for a discreet and practiced officer to enter the enemy's lines and procure intelligence.

At the house of Robert Murray, on the Incleberg (now Murray Hill, New York city) where Washington had his headquarters, while retreating toward Harlem Heights Captain Hale received his instructions for the perilous mission.

Disguising himself as a Dutch schoolmaster and Loyalist, he visited all the British camps on Long Island and in New York, openly making observations, drawings and memoranda of fortifications. He had reached a comparatively safe place on Long Island, whence he expected to cross the sound to Norwalk the following morning, when he was recognized, seized and carried aboard the guard-ship "Halifax." His disguise had been penetrated by a worthless Tory cousin of his, who betrayed him to the enemy.

Captain Hale was carried before General Howe at his headquarters in the Beekman mansion, who upon the evidence found concealed between the soles of his shoes, convicted him as a spy, and condemned him to be hung the next morning.

Hale was delivered into the hands of the British provost marshal, William Cunningham, and was confined that night in the greenhouse of the mansion. He was denied the services of a minister and the consolations of a Bible, while the letters he was permitted to write to his mother, sister and betrothed were destroyed in his presence. Cunningham said, "it was necessary that the rebels should never know that they had a man who could die with such firmness."

In the early dawn of the beautiful Sunday morning, September 22, 1776, Captain Nathan Hale bravely met the ignominious fate of a spy. As he ascended the scaffold in Colonel Henry Rutger's apple orchard, near the present junction of Market street and East Broadway, he said "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country." His sad fate spread a pall over the army and nation.

Nothing, however, can ever obscure the memory of the heroism with which he met his fate. The spirit of the true soldier was expressed when he accepted the dangerous detail, in his remark that "Every kind of service necessary to the public good became honorable by being necessary."

A little fort built during the War of 1812, at the entrance of New Haven harbor, was named Fort Hale, in his honor. In 1892 the Sons of the Revolution unveiled a bronze statue of Nathan Hale, in a corner of City Hall Park, New York city, on the spot supposed to be hallowed by the last agonies of the young hero.

Other statues of Nathan Hale are at Yale College, and on June 14, 1887, the State of Connecticut unveiled a handsome bronze statue of him in the capitol at Hartford. Timothy Dwight, Hale's tutor at Yale College, commemorated his fate in verse.

FUNERAL OF TROOPER HELD AT GLOVERSVILLE.

The funeral of Andrew J. Lawrence, member of the State Troopers, who died in the Hudson Hospital last Friday as the result of injuries sustained in a motorcycle accident in Hudson, took place from his home in Gloversville Monday afternoon. It was one of the largest funerals ever held in that city and was attended by members of the state police, headed by Sergeant Sager. The entire company from the Troy barracks, headed by Captain Keeley and Lieutenants Nagle and Hughes, were present in full uniform. World War veterans, members of the Masonic fraternities and of the Elks were present at the funeral. The Hudson police force was also represented.

WHAT MAKES BEES WILD? SAY IT'S LACK OF HONEY.

Marlboro, Sept. 22 (AP).—The British Beekeepers' Association knows what makes a wild bee wild.

Bees, it appears, often are bad tempered in the late summer and early fall when flowers are disappearing and there is not enough honey to go around. When in this mood they attack one another, and if disturbed will attack. It is a common thing for bees to kill chickens in England.

The Why, When, and Where of Fashions

TAFFETA.

With the news about the vogue for taffeta, one's imagination again begins to go to the East, whence so many of our articles come which are common today but which were great luxuries available only to princes of the State or the Church.

In the year 1194, Hugh Pudsey passed to his reward after a successful life as Bishop of Durham, England. His fame spread over many countries, and rulers must have bestowed valuable presents on him, because among his effects were found several chasubles and banners made of taffeta. This would be about the oldest known trace of this, then very costly, silk in England, if not throughout all Europe.

Much later, in 1316, Philip the Long, of France, owned four ells of green taffeta, which small quantity was considered precious enough to be inventoried by the Prince's faithful steward.

Gauls and Celts

Caesar and subsequent historians identify the Gauls with the Celts of southern Gaul, but some ethnologists now distinguish the two peoples at least so far as to make the Belgic Gauls of Caesar's time only one type or branch of the Celtic-speaking population of Gaul.

Eleanor Gunn On Fashions

The Ostrich Ruche Lends a New Charm to the Autumn Silhouette, While Ostrich-Fringed and Flounced Dresses Add Grace to the Movement of the Dance.

Certainly ostrich cannot be denied its place this season. It may be of secondary importance as a hat garniture, but it has made a lasting impression as a substitute for both fur and fringe. The ostrich ruche shows every intention of intruding in the best society, while ostrich-fringed evening dresses need no introduction to exclusive circles.

The general color scheme as applied to ostrich boas is to have them repeat the color of the costume, often in two-tone effect. They are always the long-fluted, shaggy variety made of flues which are tied by knotting them together, to piece them out to the desired length. As one may suppose, they are worn much as fur scarfs are worn, in a rather nonchalant manner, slung over one shoulder and held by velvet or other ribbon.

Naturally, there are limitations beyond which ostrich ruches can not go; they belong to the rather formal occasions of life and are not at all permissible with costumes even remotely savoring of sports. The tendency toward formality has with a good deal of justification, been emphasized this season. There is not only a richness of fabric apparent, but all the really approved shades may be cited as those which are suggestive of dignity.

Black perhaps should still remain at the list of best beloved things, but there are bright blues and rich reds and purples, to say nothing of leafy greens, which are not to be ignored. The preference for gray or beige furs may be accounted for by an urge to relieve the somewhat heavy effect all fashionable colors produce.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

New York—A Hennessy change her name? Not if City Court Justice Ryan can prevent. He denied the petition of Miss Carolyn H.—to be known as Hendon because she felt deeply humiliated by other college students calling her "three star" and "Mickey." Mr. Justice Ryan observed that the lineage of the Hennessys could be traced for centuries and they had furnished notable characters to their times.

Brussels—Miss H.—might try learning to cook. That's how the Princess Astrid progressed toward a forthcoming change in her name, it seems. Prince Leopold likes endive salad and beer. The Princess made some salad for him when he visited Stockholm.

Auburn, N. Y.—Burned pancakes provide insufficient judicial reasons for the change of the name of Mrs. Charles L. Shergur back to plain Lydia Sloan. Justice Stevens has denied the annulment petition of her husband, who is 52 and was formerly national chaplain of the G. A. R.

New York—Miss Mary Ann Payne, young society girl student and descendant of associates of William the Conqueror, is to change her name. She is to marry James Blanchard Clews, 50, head of the banking house of Henry Clews and Company.

LAST NIGHT on THE RADIO

Programs from WJZ, WGY and WEAF were so good that only confirmed radio golfers attempted anything else and were disappointed. Until a late hour DX reception was poor. Very late in the evening WCBD, WHT, WBBM, WJR, WSB and WLW were heard.

WRNY having moved down a peg or two in order not to interfere with WGY now knocks WJJD and WEBH out and these stations even matters up by putting a squeal in WRNY, so nothing has been gained by any of the changes.

Same with WMSG, only worse. Before it jumped that station was easy to get. Since the change it is seldom heard.

A more popular and pleasing program than that given at WGY by the Radio Four it would be hard to find.

WJZ had a spasm yesterday afternoon that caused Mrs. Julian Heath, telling how to make pickles, to sound as though she had a frog in her throat.

The big fight will be broadcasted Thursday night by WJZ and a chain of stations. This is a guarantee, barring static, of good reception here if only the bloopers will restrain themselves.

News of the Day In Wall Street

New York, Sept. 22 (AP)—Conditions could hardly be any better so far as General Motors is concerned, said Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of the corporation, on his departure for Europe with a group of General Motors executives. "Reports from all sections of the country indicate there is not a cloud in sight," Mr. Sloan added. "We all feel very well satisfied with the General Motors' picture as it stands today."

The Pennsylvania Railroad is asking for bids October 4 on 140,000 tons of open hearth steel rails with the option to increase the quantity to 200,000 tons.

William H. Woodin, chairman of the American Locomotive Company, says the $8 annual dividend practically is being earned and there is no thought of reducing the rate. American Car and Foundry, of which he also is president, was earning its annual dividend, too. He considered the outlook better for locomotive and equipment business, because of the heavy traffic the railroads were handling.

Profit of Telautograph Corporation for the eight months this year rose to $152,522 from $119,730 for the same period of 1925.

PHOENICIA.

Phoenicia, Sept. 22.—Mrs. Julia Weatherby of Englewood, N. J., celebrated on September 1, her ninety-third birthday at the home of Mrs. A. J. Longyear, where she spent the summer. The other city guests in honor of the occasion decorated the rooms in yellow and green, while bouquets of wild flowers and old fashioned yard flowers added beauty to it all. These flowers spoke a silent language of time past. Her sons, O. C. and H. Weatherby, of fishermen's fame, caught 20 trout the last day of fishing and these were served with the fine menu. The place favors were lollypops dressed up as dolls and were arrayed in green and gold. Among the guests were Mrs. Mary Longyear and Mrs. Sarah Elting. It was a very pleasant time for all. Mrs. Weatherby is active and with an unusual vitality of mind.

Mrs. P. R. Gott, widow of the late Rev. P. R. Gott, is now at Mrs. A. J. Longyear's where she expects to spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Kark are enjoying a trip by car to Michigan.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By Mary Graham Bonner

THE FLY

"I don't care about anyone," said the fly. "Here I am, and here I'm going to stay.

"I Pay No Attention."

"Of course, I may 'fly' off when bothered, but I'll be back again.

"I've just made up my mind to it, buzz, buzz.

"And when a small fly makes up the small mind of a small fly, that is all there is to it.

"Whatever that may mean, I do not know, so if you puzzle it out when you get the answer you won't know whether it is correct or not.

"I never did like to figure out anything like that is your fault, and so,

"I'll tell you the truth.

"I'm tired of having a good time walking on this window pane.

"Let them abuse me and talk about me all they want. I can do things they can't do.

"I'd like to see one of the children in this house walk up the window pane.

"I'd like to see just one of them able to do that. I wouldn't even ask to see all of them. One would be enough.

"Then I can walk upside down on the ceiling. Can they do that?

"If they can I've never seen them.

"I'd like to see just one of them do that. Wouldn't it be a sight to see a child walking upside down on the ceiling?

"I don't believe a child could do that, nor yet a grown-up, and they act as though I were nothing.

"There are two tricks I can do which they can't do. Of course they can do things I can't do, but still I am only a fly.

"My point is that I, the little fly, can do things they can't do.

"Now they talk about me, but I don't mind. I don't understand people's talk.

"I have made it a point never to learn. You know it would be a mistake if I understood them when they talked to me.

"Maybe you will say that I can certainly understand what they say to me or what they are meaning to say to me when they shoo me away.

"Oh, maybe so. But I pay no attention!

"It's a warm night, but I am not grumbling about the weather.

"I am buzzing away in quite a contented fly fashion. If I bothered to listen to the people, or to understand them, I might hear things that weren't complimentary.

"They might be saying they did not want me around.

"Not that I would pay any attention to them, buzz, buzz.

"Maybe I don't understand, and again maybe I do. But whether I do or whether I don't, I certainly don't take any hints—no matter how pointed.

"Now I must walk over that child's forehead. Ah! Now I'm up in the air again.

That Nice Arm.

"Well, I think I'll take a little exercise up the window.

"Now I think I'll light on her daddy's nose!

"Ah! Here I'm up in the air again.

"Well, a little ceiling walk would be pleasant. Yes, this is nice. But I think I'll walk up that nice arm I see.

"Ah! Here I'm up in the air again.

"But it all goes toward making the pleasant life and entertainment of a fly.

"Buzz, buzz."

Wise Old Cat

A London householder is responsible for the latest story of animal sagacity, and inasmuch as we have had so many tales of sun serpents and other such varmints, it would be cruel to cast doubt upon its veracity.

The householder says that his pet kitten developed the habit of begging for cheese from the dining table. A watch was kept on the cat, and it was discovered that after eating the cheese he would go to a cupboard and breathe heavily down it.

JEALOUS HUSBAND TORTURES FRIEND WHO KISSED WIFE

Minneapolis Man Held for Hours Before Rescue Is Effected.

St. Paul, Minn.—Jealousy over alleged attentions paid his wife caused Walter H. Fletcher to beat and torture Edward Horrigan, a city fireman, police declared.

Fletcher burned flayed and whipped the fireman, with whom he had been friends since early childhood.

Penalty for Kiss

Both Horrigan and Mrs. Fletcher denied any wrong-doing but Fletcher told police that Horrigan admitted to him while held a prisoner that he had kissed Mrs. Fletcher. He does not accuse Horrigan of any more than this, and said he tortured his boyhood friend as an example to deter other men from "playing around" with married women.

Horrigan was rescued by police, who found him bound to a chair. He is reported as being in a serious condition.

Fletcher said he had been wronged by Horrigan and for some time had been seeking revenge. Finally he sent Held Prisoner Five Hours.

Roy Kleinsmith for Horrigan, and the fireman went with the youth to Fletcher's room.

Tortured for Hours

There Horrigan was overpowered and bound to a chair. As Kleinsmith stood by with a rifle, Fletcher beat Horrigan; then he cut thin strips of skin from his body, and followed with a blacksnake whip. Burning matches were applied to the skin of the victim.

The fireman fainted, but was revived by cold water poured on him by Fletcher. After five hours Fletcher decided to call a photographer to take a picture. The photographer notified police, who also arrested Kleinsmith.

Crazed Wife Slayer Uses Babes as Shield

Cincinnati, Ohio.—Shouting defiance from the windows of his little farmhouse near New Richmond, Ohio, Scott Workman, forty-two, a farmer, for two hours paced back and forth across the body of his wife, whom he had slain, before he was captured by a posse of 100 men through a ruse.

With his two babies, youngest of his brood of nine, clasped against his breast as a shield, Workman called out taunts and jibes to the posse, who dared not shoot. In the house lay his wife, Nora, with twenty bullets in her body.

The drink-crazed farmer was seen frequently to pour himself out a drink from a jug of moonshine liquor. Sheriff Croswell induced Charles McAllister, a friend of Workman, to ask him for a drink.

During this time Sheriff Croswell and Marshal Ireton slipped behind and overpowered him.

Left Child Chained by Leg to Bathtub

New York—Chained to the leg of a bathtub because she had violated parental orders and had gone to the movies, Rose Pumpian, fourteen years old, with head, eyes and face dancing from her left ankle, was taken from her home in Brooklyn, N. Y., by members of the Brooklyn Children's Society.

Law Claims Life of Boy Murderer

Wolfpoint, Mont.—Ferdinand Schlaps, eighteen-year-old farm hand, was sentenced to hang for the murder last May of Mrs. Ludmilla Geisler and her husband, Anton, his employers. The penalty was fixed by a jury. In his confession Schlaps declared he perpetrated the double murder to obtain an automobile and a small sum of money he knew Geisler carried.

The youth showed no emotion when sentence was pronounced.

MAN ADMITS LONG CAREER OF CRIME

Strangled or Attacked 12 Women in California.

San Francisco—Philip H. Brown, while on his way to San Bernardino in custody of Sheriff W. A. Shay of Needles, confessed that he strangled to death or attacked 12 women in California. He declares his attacks were all on women. Brown says he has been in an insane asylum. This, however, has not been confirmed. Brown was serving ten days in jail for trespassing on railroad property when he made the confession.

Brown said his crimes were committed in San Francisco, San Jose and southern California cities. William Kent, acting chief of police of Seattle, is convinced from a description of Brown that he is the man who attacked and killed Sylvia Gaines, college girl, in Seattle, recently. Wallace C. Gaines, the girl's father, is charged with her murder.

Police of San Francisco have been seeking for weeks a man known as the "dark strangler," believed to have murdered Miss Clara Newman, elderly spinster, here last February.

Forced to Sacrifice Mother for Husband

Orleans, France.—Mme. Rose Leveque, a pretty peasant from the little village of St. Avit, sobbed out a story worthy of a Greek tragedy at its starkest.

When her five-year-old daughter, Lucienne, was found strangled in a hayloft in 1922, the child's father, Pierre Leveque confessed that he did it to shield his wife, believing she did it in an infanticide fit of madness when about to give birth to a second child.

So piteous was the father's state of mind that the jury condemned him only to five years' solitary confinement.

Mme. Leveque threw herself at the feet of the prosecutor, after four years of mental torture, and said she knew all the time that her sixty-nine-year-old mother strangled little Lucienne because she was too niggardly to help support a second grandchild.

"I had to let Pierre bear the blame, mamma's eyes haunted me so," the young mother said. "I wandered like a wild beast in the forest in recent months and Pierre's eyes began to haunt me, too. I must make a choice—mamma did it."

Pierre Leveque will be freed, while his aged mother-in-law has been placed in jail.

Slayer's Death List Stopped at Thirteen

Seattle, Wash.—Thomas Johnson, self-accused slayer of fourteen persons, learned here that he had killed only thirteen. He was admittedly annoyed at the discovery.

"Superstitious," he repeated, when questioned. "I'll say I am. The thirteenth man I killed was the Minneapolis lawyer, Leonard Erdall, for whose death I suppose I'll go to trial when I get back there. Well, sir, after I shot Erdall I had the shivers. Being the thirteenth murder, I was afraid they'd get me for it.

"Then, after I'd held up a young engineer in Minneapolis and supposed I'd killed him, I thought I had committed fourteen murders and felt the jinx was off me."

Detective Thomas Patrick Gleason who came here from Minneapolis to see Johnson, explained that the young engineer ran and fell on a street, feigning death.

Farm Hand Wins After Long Fight With Snake

Walpack, N. J.—Battling with a snake, a copperhead, for over half an hour, a farm hand managed to kill the reptile. The snake measured six feet three inches in length and was of unusual girth. Entering an unused box stall in the barn and closing the sliding door behind him the man saw the snake, which lay between him and a pitchfork. As he tried to open the door again and escape the snake advanced. There was a lively chase about the stall until the farmer finally came within reach of the pitchfork. He killed the snake as reported [illegible]

State Publishes More Records

Records of Schenectady Committee Show Conditions of Frontier Life and Warfare During Early Days of War of the Revolution.

The "Minutes of the Albany Committee of Correspondence" have now been published in full by the State of New York. Volume 1, containing the minutes of the parent committee for 1775-78, appeared in 1923; volume 2, with the minutes of the Schenectady committee for 1775-79 and an index to the entire work, is just out. These records, with the exception of the fragmentary minute book of the Tryon (now Montgomery) county committee, privately published in 1905, constitute the only surviving records of those committees which were organized throughout the state, and which, even before the Declaration of Independence, took over county, city and town government in all parts of the then colony of New York. The reader is brought close to the primal forces upon which were based the work of the Provincial and Continental Congresses. In 1775 the committees seemed to regard themselves only as military committees to assist in raising and supporting troops; but by degrees they took over various civil and judicial functions; at the same time one is impressed with the orderly and legal way in which the Revolution was carried on.

The array of activities was bewildering and included:

1. The raising, drafting, equipping, disciplining, training, officering, stationing and paying of troops.

2. The exemptions from military duty of those in essential industries or employment.

3. The detection, imprisonment, punishment and exile of the disaffected, spies and emissaries.

4. The suppression of organized revolts within the county and the prosecution of those guilty of speaking adversely of the patriot cause.

5. The support of those made poor by the war, the burial of their dead, and the helping of refugees.

6. The collection of the excise and the regulation of taverns.

7. The supervision of the construction of hospitals, barracks, forts and prisons.

8. The assumption of authority over the ordinances and powers of the city officers and the control of fire masters and fire regulations.

9. The regulation of prices for all kinds of articles, particularly of tea, sugar and salt.

10. The regulation and encouragement of trade and manufactures, and the inspection for bad products.

11. The handling of appeals to control housing difficulties, fix wages and prevent hoarding.

12. The encouragement of auxiliary aid such as the knitting of socks for the soldiers, collecting linen rags, medicines, and instruments.

13. The control of the issuance of paper money and of counterfeiting.

14. The quarantining against smallpox.

15. The rationing of food, particularly of wheat, and preventing its distillation into whiskey.

16. Subscriptions for the poor at home and in Boston.

17. The supervision of elections of members in subdistricts and for members of the Provincial Congress and the legislature.

18. The maintenance of law and order.

19. The establishment of night watches.

20. The management of Indian affairs and relations. A large part of the time of the committee was taken up, as might be expected, with the tories, prisoners, deserters, murderers, passes, rangers, protection of the loyal, robberies, plunder, sequestration of tory property and treason, all very similar in character to the work carried on by the commissioners for detecting conspiracies.

While the above applies particularly to the Albany committee (which acted for the entire county and so including the present Albany, Rensselaer, Columbia, Schenectady, Saratoga, and parts of Schoharie, Greene and Washington counties), the activities of the Schenectady committee were almost as multitudinous and bring one even nearer to the frontier of the conflict. These minutes have an added interest because they are the only records of any district committee which have even partially survived to the present, and the present compilation was only possible by the combination of a portion of this record printed from a rare publication of 1776, of another part preserved in manuscript in the Library of Congress, and a third found in a recent transcript, all originals having disappeared in the course of the last 50 years.

While the record of the Albany committee closes with 1778, the Schenectady record shows that both the county and district committees were functioning in 1779, but it seems probable that soon thereafter the regularly constituted authorities under the State constitution of 1777 took over the work and that the Revolutionary committees ceased their activities.

These books are for sale by the Order Section, State Library, Albany, N. Y., at a price covering cost of printing.

A Butterfly Holdup

A year or two ago an especially dry winter in southern California caused many of the mountain plants to wither and die. So the butterflies of the hills had not enough food supply and came down by clouds to the valleys. They were beautiful, principally of a splendid red variety. They fluttered in glowing swarms along the roads and filled the radiators of passing motor cars, causing overheating of the engines. When drivers went ahead without brushing off the butterflies, the motors were often badly damaged. The only thing to do was to stop and sweep them out and off. It was a regular butterfly holdup.—Outer World.

Hand to Mouth Policy Praised

Good for the Country As a Whole, Says Economist of Chase National Bank—Says It Has Allowed Business to Expand Despite Falling Commodity Prices.

Speaking before the Financial Advertisers' Association in Detroit this morning, Dr. B. M. Anderson, Jr., economist of the Chase National Bank, New York, commended the general policy of hand to mouth buying. He said that this had been responsible for a new phenomenon, namely, the fact that business could expand despite falling commodity prices in 1926. Bradstreet's average of commodity wholesale prices dropped 12.2 per cent from December, 1925, to August, 1926, but the physical volume of production for the first half of 1926 increased 3.3 per cent over the same months of 1925, and profits in 1926 appear to have been well-sustained. Such an occurrence seems never to have happened before. It could not have happened this year if inventories purchased at 1925 prices had been large in January, 1926.

Dr. Anderson said that there had in the past been a conflict between economic theory and business experience as to the effect of falling prices on the volume of business. The law of supply and demand would hold that falling prices stimulate buying, whereas business experience has been that the first effect of falling prices is to check buying since buyers wait for still lower prices. In the long pull, business experience has confirmed economic theory since, when the decline in prices slows down, buying picks up again, and business revival begins when prices are still slowly falling. The hand to mouth buying policy, however, in 1926, at least, has brought economic theory and business experience together. The immediate effect of price reduction has been increased buying, for the business field as a whole.

Dr. Anderson indicated that departure from the hand to mouth policy today might be more dangerous than it would have been before the war, particularly in view of our inelastic labor supply. A sharp increase in forward buying would lead to a sharp competitive bidding for labor which would lead labor costs to mount much more rapidly than they would have done before our immigration restrictions.

Though appreciating the inconvenience to certain manufacturers of this policy, he none the less defended it as good for the country as a whole. He suggested that the manufacturers are finding partial relief, at least, through throwing an increased part of the burden and risks of carrying raw materials upon the general speculative markets, which when well organized, are particularly well qualified to carry such burdens.

No Li'ns for Little Rastus

Little Rastus was on the train on his way to the country for the first time to visit his uncle Rastus for whom he was named.

Uncle Rastus hitched his team up to the spring wagon and went to meet the train which arrived in the little village after dark. After helping little Rastus into the wagon he said: "Boy, hold dese lines til Ah gets de baggage."

When Uncle Rastus had gathered up the baggage he was surprised to see little Rastus running at breakneck speed back toward the train. Uncle Rastus exclaimed: "What in de name o' goodness you runnin' back to de train for—boy?"

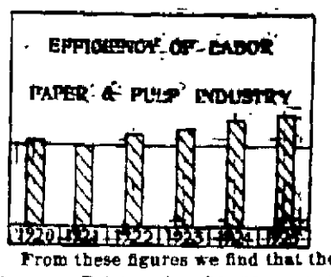
Port Ewen Man Struck by Car

Charles Schoonmaker, 53 years old, a farmer of Port Ewen, was struck by a car Monday night while walking on the New Paltz-Highland road. The car did not stop. He was found lying in the road by a party of motorists from Kingston and taken to the Vassar Brothers' Hospital in Poughkeepsie, says the Poughkeepsie Eagle-News. Schoonmaker received possible fractures of the ribs and suffered from shock.

EFFICIENCY AND GOOD BUSINESS

One great reason for all the present favorable business reports is the fact that labor is at work, and working efficiently. As an illustration of this we will take the paper and pulp industry. A recent "Labor Review" published by the U. S. Department of Labor, gives some very interesting index figures on the productivity, or efficiency, of labor in this industry.



From these figures we find that the lowest efficiency in the paper and pulp industry was in 1921. This as you all remember, was a year of great business depression. However, from 1921 through 1925 the efficiency of this labor has steadily increased each year until in 1925 it stands at about 40 per cent above the 1921 figure.

The point I wish to make is this, good or bad times do not make efficient or inefficient workers; but efficient or inefficient labor and management has a great deal to do with good or bad business. As times get more prosperous both labor and management begin to think more of how much they can get rather than how much they can give or produce. While labor is loafing on the job management spends more time on the golf links or in Colorado or Florida. Inefficiency and carelessness gradually run through the entire business structure and, from the very nature of things all business suffers. Then, before we realize it, business depression is with us again.

When business is bad we all have to hustle. Labor gives an honest day's work and management stays on the job. The efficiency of productions begins to increase. As a direct result business begins to pick up and soon is booming for we have reached another period of prosperity. That, in brief, is the cycle of business, and it always has been such.

Here we are now, in a period of prosperity with all of us working efficiently. How long we have prosperity depends entirely upon us—on how efficiently and honestly we work.

We are glad to hear Mrs. Bell Lane is improving after her recent illness.

Mrs. John Gorman of New York city spent Friday and Saturday at the DeVall home.

A masquerade was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bennett of Brooklyn before closing their cottage on Labor Day. A good time was had by all the Parkites, including many outsiders. The costumes worn were both pretty and unique.

Nervousness, Shortness of Breath, Indigestion, Acid Stomach Relieved. Strength Restored. Says Tanlac Deserves All Credit

Men and women suffering from nervousness and run-down condition may discover the surest way to get quick relief in the experience of Mrs. Alice Fenton, 55 Third Street, Rochester, N. Y., whose marvelous recovery from a long siege of suffering surprised her closest friends.

If you never feel well and just drag through the days, tired and fagged-out; if your stomach rebels at food and you spend miserable hours doubled up with pain caused by indigestion; if you do not sleep soundly and dizzy spells attack you when you stoop over; if you are losing weight and feel old—watch out! Mrs. Fenton says: "For about 5 years I suffered from indigestion, unable to sleep and got up tired and worn out. Food filled my stomach with gas that made me uncomfortable for hours. My right leg pained me so I was hardly able to get around. I was losing strength and weight.

"Then I tried Tanlac, the wonderful tonic. The first bottle gave me an appetite. Indigestion disappeared. I began to sleep well. Soon my nerves calmed down and I felt stronger. I looked on weight.

"Today I feel better than I have in years. All my thanks to Tanlac. It brought me relief and restored my health. I will never be without this tonic, which is made from roots, barks and herbs."

Mrs. Fenton is only one of many who have found happy relief from pain and gained new strength taking Tanlac. It usually builds up the body, wipes out poisons and suffering. Keep well, keep youth and health—take Tanlac.

Pennant Margins Are Now Held by Cards and Yanks

(By The Associated Press.)

Whatever chance the Cincinnati Reds had of overhauling the speeding St. Louis Cardinals in the last few games of the National League race appeared remote today with the Cardinal lead of two games still intact and but four more contests to play.

The Boston Braves, completing the route they started Monday with a double victory, yesterday but out the midwesterners 4 to 0 in a fifth consecutive defeat. The Cards gained nothing on the day, when Brooklyn beat them, 4 to 3, but with the end of the season just around the corner, each day without a loss in standing sends the St. Louis chances soaring.

Only a crushing reversal of form seems able to stop the Cards now. St Louis fans already are planning a demonstration to celebrate acquisition of the city's first National League pennant when the team finishes its swing through the east for final games with Brooklyn, New York, and Cincinnati.

The Yankees battered Chicago 11 to 0 to prove that their famed offensive had not disappeared in the recent slump, and maintined their three-game lead over Cleveland while the Ohioans were picking on the Boston Red Sox, 6 to 1.

Waite Hoyt, with visions of a world series in his head, held the White Sox to two hits while Babe Ruth was clouting his 44th homer and Tony Lazzeri his 18th. The Yanks need two more wins in five contests while the Indians are losing one out of five to clinch the flag.

Washington sluggers were in form against St. Louis pounding four pitchers for an 11 to 6 win. "Goose" Goslin and Manager Stan Harris had four hits apiece.

Howard Ehmke again proved his value to the Philadelphia Athletics when he held Detroit to five hits and beat them 3 to 2.

Fred Fitzsimmons boosted his total of victories to 13 for the season when he pitched the New York Giants to a 5 to 2 win over Chicago. Philadelphia took a fall out of the Pirates, 7 to 2.

Syracuse Another Mystery Eleven

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 22 (AP).—Syracuse University football team, rated in the past among the eastern leaders, will enter the season of 1926 as one of the mystery elevens.

More than two weeks of practice so far has shown only one "varsity lineup." When twelve veteran letter men, Captain Vic Hanson, Archoska and Jones, ends; Bayley, Levy and Lee, tackles; Friedman and Wittman, centers; Cook, Carr, Clark and Barbuti, backs, reported for practice, Coach Pete Reynolds handed them orange jersies and said: "You are the varsity. Wittman will shift from center to guard and Bayley from tackle to guard. Archoska and Jones will alternate at ends. Cook will call signals."

Coming from last year's freshmen, Reynolds has Jonah Goldman of New York, sensational halfback, and "Skinney" Baysinger, former Orange celebrity, and already established as the squad's best punter, as well as Bobowick, Newman and Kopp, 200 pound linemen, and Winnock and Fontaine, crack yearling ends. Another star is Jake Patterson, who returned this year to college after three years' absence. Under "Chick" Meehan, Patterson was a mainstay in the varsity line.

While the newcomers smash through scrimmage work, Reynolds allows his seniors to play around together, putting in most of their time in signal drills with two scrimmages a week.

The belief is that Reynolds intends to use this combination of veterans in his season opener against Hobart September 25, and if possible to follow through with it against Vermont and William and Mary.

Heads Down

This incident involves an advertising expert and his first experience as an amateur landscape gardener. Deciding on tulips to bear the brunt of his offensive, he purchased 50 bulbs. These were planted last fall. With the advent of spring he began to watch for the green sprouts, but nothing appeared. He made a complaint to the florist who had sold him the bulbs. The florist, puzzled, made a trip out to look over the bed. He discovered, to the perfect chagrin of the advertising expert, that the bulbs had been planted upside down.—Detroit News.

Stage Great Game Here Saturday

Rivaling in interest the Dempsey-Tunney battle is the battle to be staged Saturday afternoon at the Kingston Fair Grounds by the fire department and the police department when they clash in the baseball classic of 1926. The game will be called at 2.15 o'clock and there should be a record breaking attendance. The police are anxious to repeat their victory of ten years ago when they sent the firemen down to defeat at the Athletic Field. The police will likely use the same lineup they used against Newburgh, while the fire department lineup has not been announced as yet.

Newburgh Quits Pro Grid League

The Hudson Valley Pro Football League is looking about for another member in the place of Newburgh, the Hilly City team having dropped from the ranks because of inability to secure a gridiron. The Yellow Jackets' match scheduled with this club last Sunday had to be postponed because of this reason, but the members were in hopes of securing a field before the next game. Undoubtedly another team will join the league in a day or so as there are several prospective grid squadrons in the valley that are desirous of being a member of the league.

Twelve gridiron warriors went through a stiff workout under the supervision of Coach Preston Tuesday evening, much being accomplished at this practice. Following the practice, twelve members of the Yellow Jacket squad were outfitted in the new football togs. Three extra uniforms are on hand and as many men are needed to fill them in order to make up the full quota of the squad. Practices will be held at the Athletic Field on Thursday and Friday evenings at 6 o'clock.

JONAH YEAR FOR GOLF CHAMPIONS

Few of Leaders Able to Retain Their Titles.

The present golfing season gives symptoms of being remembered as the Jonah year. Champions are being kicked all over the lot. None of the contestants in any of the championships played thus far has given a hoot about the titleholder. They start right out, and lo, before the championship has gone any great distance the king is out.

It started down in Florida and out in California and swept northward and eastward. Champion after champion was beaten and a new king crowned. It seems as if most of this country's golfery have been guilty of lese majeste and, what's more, seem proud of it.

England saw the dethroning of Jim Barnes and of Abe Mitchell and the coronation of Walter Hagen and Bobby Jones. Willie Macfarlane also lost his title, which Bobby Jones usurped, stealing it right from under the nose of one of Willie's neighbors, Joe Turnesa. Macdonald Smith came back from Pinehurst with the north and south title under his arm. He didn't have it when he started south from Lakeville. Don't overlook Jess Sweetser, who sailed from the United States with one title and came back with another.

Ducky Yates, who won the north and south amateur championship, came north without it. Similar things happened in Texas, California, New Mexico, and 45 other states. The count from the territories is not yet in, but a landslide in favor of the revolutionists can be expected.

Those who have titles still in their possession had better employ bodyguards. With the metropolitan open and amateur titles in new hands, as happened in the Long Island and dozens of other amateur championships, a continuation of this sort of stuff may be expected.

Retires as Manager

Wilbert Robinson, who has served as manager of the Brooklyn baseball club since 1914 and has also held the office of president for the last two years, says he will give up the managerial reins at the end of the present campaign.

Sport Notes

"Wild Bill" Mehlhorn is the only star golfer who wears gloves while playing.

* * *

A series of six football games will be played in London and Berlin this fall by an American team headed by "Red" Grange.

* * *

We suppose if Pop Ederle had won a million dollars on Trudie, he would have given her in addition to the roadster a $7 wrist watch.

* * *

If the Britishers don't quit knocking the Ederle record they'll get themselves nominated for membership in the Bum Sports' club.

* * *

Insurance returns on sports policies show the greatest number of accidents occur to those who play golf or happen to be where it is played.

* * *

Walter Hagen, the professional golfer, has 61 suits of clothes. Maybe this is why the other pros have such a hard time running him ragged.

* * *

Golf recently became perilous at Ndra, near Johannesburg, owing to the presence of a lion and lioness, who took up their home on the links.

* * *

It's easy enough to take the wind out of the sails of a yacht, but no human agency can silence the gibbering of a golfer who has just holed out in one.

* * *

Golf is spreading in Germany. A new 18-hole course has been opened in Berlin. Germany has many golfers among its students and wealthier classes.

Elmer Layden of Davenport, Iowa, one of the "Four Horsemen" of Notre Dame's 1924 championship football team, has signed to play with the Rock Island Independents, members of "Red" Grange's professional football league.

Dempsey Talks Of Five Rounds

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 22 (AP).—Gene Tunney "will have to be a good catcher to go over five rounds," in his fight for the world's heavyweight championship tomorrow night, in the opinion of Jack Dempsey.

"If I can tip Tunney over with the first punch I will do it," the title defender declared last night.

He went to bed at his bungalow in West Atlantic City "feeling like a two-year-old," and convinced that victory at Philadelphia was only a matter of a few rounds.

"I am going to win," he declared. "How many rounds I don't know. If I can do it in the first round, I'll do it. If it takes a little longer, I can't help it. But Tunney will have to be a good catcher to go over five rounds the way I feel today."

The plans for Dempsey's departure for the battleground were still undecided. He did not know whether he would remain here until tomorrow morning and then motor to Philadelphia but there were so many law suits pending there he considered remaining here until the last minute, arriving in Philadelphia just in time to weigh in at 2 o'clock tomorrow.

There was very little doing at Dempsey's training camp yesterday when he went through a light limbering up workout to keep his muscles loosened. Newspaper correspondents have been privileged to watch Dempsey go through his training stunts but they were all barred yesterday. Dempsey did no boxing. Instead he had a two-round fling at the light punching bag, a session at shadow boxing, and two rounds with the heavy bag.

Tunney Calm As Bout Nears

Stroudsburg, Pa., Sept. 22 (AP).—Gene Tunney, challenger for the world's heavyweight championship, was today in a position of nothing to do until tomorrow. The brawny athlete who went from Greenwich Village and a clerk's job to heights in the boxing arena via the United States Marine Corps is all through with his training and waits with impatience for his best chance.

Today and tomorrow are hard ones for the contender. Tunney has worked long and faithfully to place himself at the peak of condition for his bout with Jack Dempsey, reigning monach of pugilism, and feeling himself in the proverbial "pink of condition" he is anxious to prove it.

Possibly no champion nor challenger has approached a title bout with less worry. Tunney is a type unto himself and the very eve of the championship contest finds him unmoved by nerves. The last few days have gradually brought him to the edge his trainers have sought and he is champing at the bit but still retaining his record-breaking calm.

The aspirant for the highest honor his life calling has to give hopes to break an ante-bout welcome in Philadelphia. His plan is to slip unnoticed into the Sesquicentennial city and he wishes those who have cheers to give him to save them for a combination with the uproarous welcome certain to be accorded the marine entry when he climbs into the fateful square ring.

GARDINER SHUTS OUT MYSTICS AT THAT PLACE SUNDAY.

Manager McNally and his Mystic Baseball Club travelled to Gardiner Sunday afternoon where they were given their first shut out of the season by a score of 8 to 0. Bill McDaniels, star right handed pitcher of the Mystics allowed Gardiner seven scattered hits but was given poor support, his team mates making a total of seven errors. Only in the sixth inning was the Gardiner Club able to get to McDaniels for more than one hit. Baldwin pitching for Gardiner also pitched a great game and was given air-tight support.

Sunday, October 3, the Mystics play Gardiner again in that village.

Pride of Ancestry

You can teach an old dog new tricks!

I WAS already a veteran pipe-smoker when I ran across Prince Albert. It happened one day in the smoking-car. I reached for my tobacco and found I was "out." A good samaritan sitting across the aisle held out a friendly looking red tin.

I accepted the offer. That was a great moment in my life, as it turned out. Why, that very first taste won me. It was cool, like a breeze through an open window. It was sweet as a ripe peach. It was fragrant, even in that smoke-filled car. I was having the time of my life.

The mildness of Prince Albert appealed to me too. Yet there was plenty of body to it. I knew I was smoking. And I knew I was enjoying it more than any other tobacco I had ever tried. That settled me. I bought some P. A. when the train pulled in.

That was several years ago. I've been a P. A. regular ever since. Maybe you need a similar experience to put you next to the grandest tobacco that ever lined a pipe-bowl. My suggestion is: don't wait! Get yourself a tidy red tin of Prince Albert today!

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

Don't Use Pasters On Windshields

Their Use Is Prohibited by Law and State Motor Vehicles Inspectors Will Arrest Motorists Who Persist in Their Use.

A circular letter has been issued by the State Tax Commission calling attention of all inspectors of motor vehicles to the provision of the law which prohibits placing stickers or pasters on the windshield of motor vehicles. The attention of the department has been called to the great number of cars returning from Canada which are carrying a paster on the windshield which practically covers the lower half of the glass. This custom is absolutely prohibited by section 286 of the law.

The only sticker which is allowed to be pasted to the windshield of a car is the omnibus bond sticker which is placed in the lower right corner of the windshield. All other forms of stickers are prohibited for the reason that they detract and hamper proper vision of the driver of a car. Taxi "for rent" signs are prohibited on windshields.

Rear view obstructions are also prohibited and the custom of pasting stickers on the rear window is prohibited by the law.

Section 286 reads, "The use or placing of pasters or stickers on windshields or rear windows of motor vehicles, other than those authorized by the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, is hereby prohibited."

Instructions have been sent out to Motor Vehicle Inspectors to stop all cars carrying pasters or stickers in violation of this provision of the law. If the violation is immediately remedied, the car will be allowed to proceed, if not, the operator will either be arrested or given a summons.

ORANGE COUNTY DAIRYMEN WILL REPRESENT NEW YORK

Ithaca, N. Y., Sept. 22 (AP).—The dairy interests of junior club members in New York will be represented at the national dairy show at Detroit, October 6 to 13, by two teams recently chosen at the state fair at Syracuse.

A dairy demonstration team consisting of Clifford Hoppenstedt and Thomas Doyle, both of Pine Bush, Orange county, will demonstrate some phase of dairy production such as feeding or rearing dairy cattle.

A dairy cattle judging team consisting of William Griffith, West Winfield, Raymond McLaughlin, Sidney Center, Peter Lucksinger, Syracuse, R. D. 3; and Baumes Marshman, Oxford, as alternate, will compete with teams from other states. The boys were selected from about fifty contestants representing some of the best dairy club boys in the state, according to Professor W. J. Wright, junior extension leader in New York.

The expenses of the demonstration team will be paid by the national dairy exposition, while the New York State Fair Commission will give each member of the judging team fifty dollars to help defray his expenses.

Coolidge Gives Advice to Young

ed. "They can vote and hold office now and some of them are beginning to look on politics as a possible career."

"If a girl wishes to fit herself for a political career, I think the best thing she can do is to get married and bring up a family. I can conceive no experience better adapted to give either a woman or a man that knowledge which is most likely to be of value in the discharge of public office than that which comes from the family life. I am aware that there have been many excellent executives, both men and women, who lived a single life. But I think that they have worked under a great handicap which perhaps entitles them to a greater credit. A successful political career consists of being able to provide the people with what they need in their relationship with each other. I think that the family life is the cornerstone of our social life, and so of our political life. We do not in this country have opportunities which can be referred to as affording a strictly political career. There are many avenues of public life, each of which requires for its best execution a special preparation. The national government has ten departments under cabinet officers, each one requiring a special knowledge for its administration. Even our municipal governments have also many departments. The only preparation that is worth anything is a course of study which will make one an expert in the department in which it is proposed to serve.

Business Career Dependable.

"I doubt if it is possible for a young man to choose politics as a career. He may go into the diplomatic service as it is now constituted in this country, or into the civil service somewhere as the result of passing an examination, but for the young man to expect to gain a livelihood by holding political office would seem to be very undesirable. I should say that he ought to have some business on which he could depend for a living, and as he has an aptitude for it take such part in politics as he finds he can do without losing his means of livelihood. Otherwise he loses his independence.

Recommends College Education.

"My own opinion is that as many boys and girls as possible ought to have a college education, whether they intend to follow a professional career or not. I think one of the mistakes lies in thinking that because a boy or girl has a college education he or she must therefore seek a professional career. It is my observation that in large cities the legal profession especially is overmanned, so that many young men are doing a very small practice and are receiving a very small compensation. A college education ought to fit a man or woman to be content in any occupation, because it enlarges the capacity for the enjoyment of the intellectual and spiritual side of life. It seems to me that a man with a college education and an artisan's income would be almost in an ideal position."

"You made one statement, Mr. President, which I noted particularly," I remarked. "You said that those men and women who have attained distinguished success without being married have worked under a great handicap. I take it to mean that there is no doubt in your mind that marriage is a great contribution to a man's success?"

"How can there be any doubt about it?" he replied. "A man who has the companionship of a lovely and gracious woman enjoys the supreme blessing that life can give. And no citizen of the United States knows the truth of that statement better than I."

VASSAR COLLEGE CHAPTER RAISES $1,000 FOR RELIEF

The Vassar College Branch of the Dutchess County Chapter of the Red Cross on Tuesday wired $1,000 to the national headquarters at Washington for the relief of the devastated area of Florida. Every individual in Poughkeepsie is working for the good cause and the theatres, public officials, Red Cross, schools and the Kiwanis Club have also turned to lend a helping hand.

Four West Point Cadets Suspended

West Point, N. Y., Sept. 22 (AP).—Four cadets of the United States Military Academy have been suspended in their senior year for hazing, the first disciplinary action for this offense in ten years.

The suspended cadets are: John B. Allen, of St. Charles, Mo.; David Peter Laubach, Easton, Pa.; William E. Potter, Toledo, Ohio; and Thomas J. Cody, of West Point.

They are charged with ordering seven "plebes" or first year students to run up and down three flights of barrack stairs. The suspension resulted from an investigation that followed the resignation on August 25, of James Nash of St. Louis, Mo.

Nash submitted an affidavit saying he had not been hazed when he resigned but withdrew the affidavit when shown the regulations defining hazing.

The academy adjutant said last night that the suspended men will be allowed to return to the academy next year but will remain behind a year throughout their army careers, and promotion is by seniority.

Plattekill School Alumni Assoc.

On Saturday, September 11, a reunion of former scholars and teachers of School District No. 8, Plattekill, was held at the school house and attended by 50 former teachers and scholars.

The weather was perfect and all present were enthusiastic and enjoyed the occasion. The Rev. Mr. Taylor, pastor of the M. E. Church at Plattekill, delivered an address. Among the speakers were Mrs. Lydia Bowerman, Newburgh; Mrs. Martha Smith, Highland; Walton J. Brown, Ohioville, and Charles Crawford, Stone Ridge. A permanent organization was formed and regular yearly reunions will be held. Miss Elizabeth Brown of Ohioville acted as teacher.

After "the feast of reason and flow of soul" all adjourned to the grounds and partook of the feast of good things provided.

Several of the teachers present taught the school over 50 years ago.

Regrets from several persons who were unable to be present were read.

The present teacher, Mrs. John Nabor, gave an interesting talk, and showed a part of her equipment for illustrating her work.

Market for Fruits And Vegetables

New York, Sept. 22 (AP).—The market was steady for state lettuce of fancy quality but dull for ordinary and poor. Trading was moderate and the very best realized from $1.50 @$1.75, very rarely $2, per crate. Offgrade, however, ranged from 50c @$1. On the other hand western Iceberg lettuce closed stronger, doubtless due to the lighter offerings. Crates of three and five dozen heads wholesaled from $3.50@ $5.50, depending upon the condition and quality.

Notwithstanding the light arrivals of cabbage from central and western New York, the market was practically lifeless because of the limited demand. Bulk domestic white of the finest quality peddled out from cars on the basis of $18@$20 per ton, ordinary stock realized around $15.

A slight improvement was noted in the market on western New York Fellenbrug prunes. Receipts were more plentiful, nevertheless the demand was a trifle better than yesterday. Half bushel baskets jobbed out from 65c@$1, principally 75c@85c.

Trading was moderately active for state Bartlett pears which were fancy in quality, green and large in size. Supplies were relatively light. Sales were made at $2.25@$2.50 per bushel basket for the finest, whereas ordinary and overripe ranged from $1@$2.

Price changes for Hudson valley basket black grapes were small and unimportant. Offerings were rather light and the demand fair. Twelve quart baskets sold from 75c@80c, occasionally well packed fancy, large fruit commanded 85c@90c. Eight basket carriers brought from $1@ $1.25.

The undertone of the peach market was a trifle weaker owing to the less active demand. Most of the offerings, however, were more or less soft and over-ripe. Hudson valley Elbertas in bushel baskets changed hands at $1.75@$2.50 and six basket carriers from $1.50@$2.50.

"A DREAM OF QUEEN ESTHER" AT EPWORTH HALL TONIGHT.

The Bible drama, "A Dream of Queen Esther," which nearly filled Epworth Hall of Clinton Avenue M. E. Church Tuesday evening, will be repeated this evening for the convenience of those who missed this performance. This presentation, which is probably one of the best entertainments ever given in the hall, is well worth attending.

DEAR HELEN:—

"I want to tell you that I saw the dandiest picture at The Auditorium Theatre last night. It is called "Men of Steel," starring Milton Sills—that famous movie actor—and assisting him is the beautiful Doris Kenyon, also George Fawcett acting a comedy role. Honest, Helen, all he has to do is close one of his funny old eyes and squint and you could die laughing. I felt blue when I came but left feeling that I saw something worth while.

It is playing all week, so be sure to make Jack take you. Don't miss it for anything!

And the dandiest pictures that are coming now. I am going to watch the Auditorium programs. It looks to me like all the best pictures are coming there. Think of it, "Sparrows," starring Mary Pickford, is playing at The Strand, New York City, next week and The Auditorium will play it the following week. And the best of all, "Stella Dallas," that I missed seeing, is coming October 18th. It is a picture the whole country is talking about. Believe me, I won't miss any of them.

Let me know how you like "Men of Steel," and if you will come with me to see "Don Juan's Three Nights" that is playing next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Your Chum,
CONNIE.
